Come and get it! The information is endless!

In 2005 , with the help of Marion Woods, the Rockefeller Foundation graciously donated a professional library to the Little Rock School District. The library is housed at the Little Rock Instructional Resource Center (IRC) and was named after the first African American Mayor of Little Rock, Mahlon Martin. When the district first inherited the Mahlon library it only had about 100 items in its collection. Due to grants and donations the library now has over 2,000 books and other materials in its collection. It has taken five years to get materials ready for teachers to have at their disposal, but now the time has come. Finally, Little Rock has something just for us teachers, administrators and staff. Please come out and enjoy all of the information waiting to be shared!
